

Teaching Efforts Rewarded
–2004 Excellence in Teaching Award Recipients Announced–

The APGO Excellence in Teaching Award was established in 1992 to recognize outstanding women's health educators in ob-gyn medical education. Since then, 1,581 educators have received this award. This year, 150 were recognized. Each will receive a 3-inch bronze medal. In addition, their names will appear in both The APGO Reporter and the 2004 annual report of APGO and the APGO Medical Education Foundation.

APGO congratulates this year's award winners, who demonstrate their dedication to excellence in women's health care education not with an occasional effort but every day of their professional careers. Their names and institutions, as of August 1, 2004, are listed below:
